

Wendy Venoit Inducted into the National Academy of Construction

Friday, October 11, 2024

BOSTON, October 11, 2024 — Wendy Venoit, a member of the firm's Construction Law Practice, has been inducted into the National Academy of Construction (NAC). The NAC honors outstanding construction industry leaders and shares their collective experiences to help the nation by improving their industry. Wendy will be formally recognized at the NAC 2024 Member Annual Meeting in San Antonio, Texas. Membership to the academy is by invitation only and represents the entire array of construction industry stakeholders.

Wendy has more than 25 years of experience as a construction lawyer and arbitration advocate whose practice focuses on representing contractors and owners in litigation and arbitration of construction disputes. Wendy has extensive first chair experience in domestic and international construction disputes, including litigation in state and federal forums and mediation and arbitration before the AAA, JAMS, LCIA, ICDR and ICC. She is also regularly asked to counsel clients with respect to ongoing construction projects (serving as project counsel) to draft and negotiate contracts, interpret contract terms, assert and defend claims, and resolve disputes so as to avoid litigation.
