

A Chill Descends

Wednesday, September 6, 2023

Michael Osborne was quoted in a National Magazine article discussing the mixed reactions to the Competition Tribunal's order for the Competition Bureau to pay roughly $13 million to Rogers Communications Inc. and Shaw Communications Inc. "The general principle is that loser pays, and this follows that, but the amounts awarded are a fraction in the order of five percent or less of the actual spend," says Michael. According to him, the comments that the commissioner's conduct was much more unreasonable than the respondents' and that Boswell's position was "divorced from reality" and a "foray into fantasy."

To read the full article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Antitrust & Competition