State legislative and regulatory activities remain a focal point for RMAI and the receivables industry. Last year RMAI spent record resources in advocating at the state level. Given the results of the presidential election, RMAI anticipates this trend to continue as consumer advocacy efforts are refocused at state level. Meghan Stoppel will join Don Maurice (MauriceWutscher, LLP) and David Reid (RMAI) for an in-depth policy discussion on state legislative and regulatory trends, the early challenges we see, and how you can be best equipped to stay in front of upcoming changes.
