

3 Challenges For Holiday Hiring In 2020

Friday, November 6, 2020

David Barron was quoted in Law360 discussing what companies should consider with the hiring process during the COVID-19 pandemic. Companies should also consider making use of remote interviews and remote orientations for new hires to reduce the risk of an outbreak in the workplace, said David. "You can't do the HR orientation or the safety training with a large group of people, so you may have to do multiple sessions for all of those things," he said.

To read more of this article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Labor & Employment