Boulder

rrudolph@cozen.com | (303) 625-4858

Rebecca is a patent agent with a background in electrical and computer engineering. Working with corporate clients and individual inventors, she has extensive experience with a wide range of electronic and mechanical technologies, including semiconductors, aircraft engines, medical devices, satellites, UAVs, nanomaterials, cell phone systems, optical fibers, communication protocols, and consumer devices.

Prior to joining the firm, Rebecca was a patent agent with an Am Law 200 firm and a boutique IP firm. Before that, Rebecca was a primary patent examiner in computer and memory architecture with the USPTO. Her clients benefit from her substantial and beneficial experience with issues related to patent prosecution before the USPTO and overseas patent offices.

Rebecca earned her undergraduate degree in computer and electrical engineering from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.
