

How to Talk to Employees About Their Holiday Plans

Friday, November 27, 2020

Michael Schmidt was quoted in Inc. discussing if employers can ask their employees to change their holiday plans during the COVID-19 pandemic. It's common for people to post family pictures on Instagram or Facebook, but this year doing so could make fellow employees uncomfortable and put employers in a tough position. If this situation is reported, HR may need to check it out, but it's best not to go looking for information on social media, says Michael.

To read more of this article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Labor & Employment