

7th Circ. Further Clarifies Standing Of Biometric Privacy Suits

Wednesday, November 18, 2020

Erin Bolan Hines was quoted in a Law360 article discussing the Dakkota Integrated Systems case, which The Seventh Circuit remanded so the district judge could address the 15(a) claim likely preempted by the LMRA. According to Erin, they were pleased with the outcome and hopeful that the district court would find the claim is preempted by federal labor law. "Standing to bring BIPA claims has been hotly contested in many BIPA cases, and we are pleased we were able to obtain this victory for both our client and other BIPA defendants," said Erin.

To read the full article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Technology, Privacy & Data Security