Matthew Criscuolo Reelected President of The Literacy Coalition of Palm Beach County

Thursday, June 22, 2023

BOCA RATON, June 22, 2023 — Matthew Criscuolo, a member of the firm's Commercial Litigation Department, has been reelected as president of The Literacy Coalition of Palm Beach County. The Literacy Coalition is a not-for-profit organization committed to improving the quality of life in their community by promoting and achieving literacy. Community partners use extensive outreach and collaboration to ensure that individuals wanting to improve their literacy skills receive the help they need. Matt has been a member of the organization's board of directors since 2017 and is actively involved with their fundraising events.

Matt focuses his practice on complex commercial litigation, including breach of contract, business governance, business torts, construction defects, product liability, trade secrets, enforcement of non-compete agreements, premises liability, and general liability matters. He represents clients across several industries, including hospitality companies, condominium associations and developers, real estate owners and management companies, construction companies, and technology companies. Matt also represents insurers in complex coverage, claims handling, and bad faith litigation. He practices in state and federal courts and focuses on pragmatic solutions to complex business disputes, whether through developing an aggressive litigation strategy, or through negotiating an amicable, private resolution.
