

My Co-op Banned My E-Bike, Which I Need. Can They Do That?

Tuesday, October 1, 2024

Leni Cummins is quoted in a New York Times “Ask Real Estate” column responding to a question regarding co-ops banning electronic bicycles and residents requesting accommodation under the Fair Housing Act.

Electronic bicycles pose deadly fire hazards, and a case against the co-op may be weak without key elements required of a housing discrimination case. “The board cannot ignore your request,” said Leni. “But they don’t have to offer you an accommodation.”

To read more, click here. (subscription required)

Related Practice Areas

- Condominiums & Cooperatives