

How Changes in Fire Science Got a Man Out of Prison for Murder [Chicago Daily Law Bulletin]

Friday, April 20, 2018

Kevin Caraher, of Cozen O'Connor's Subrogation and Recovery Department, was profiled in the April 20 Chicago Daily Law Bulletin discussing a pro bono case in which he was able to leverage his knowledge of fire investigation techniques in working with the Illinois Innocence Project to free their client from prison and exonerate him of murder and aggravated arson charges. The Illinois Innocence Project honored Kevin with the "Defenders of the Innocent" award for the vital role he played in the successful outcome of this case. For the full article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Subrogation & Recovery