

Take Steps to Fight Pandemic Fatigue

Monday, March 8, 2021

David Barron was quoted in SHRM discussing how pandemic fatigue is creating challenges and legal risks that employers need to address. He said a lack of diligence in following safety protocols "is especially problematic right now because OSHA [the Occupational Safety and Health Administration] and several state safety agencies are increasing enforcement efforts through new standards and regulations, which raises the stakes for noncompliance."

To read more of this article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Labor & Employment