

A Primer for Your Clients With Disabilities or Your Clients With Children With Disabilities

Ellen Morris discusses the benefits, implications, and accounting requirements of Supplemental Needs Trusts (SNTs) in the Daily Business Review.

Designed to hold assets for those with disabilities, SNTs cover expenses that can significantly improve one's quality of life, such as transportation, mobility aids, individual nursing care, and more. Ellen provides practitioners with insight into the four types of SNTs that one may benefit from, who is eligible, as well as important considerations to help individuals with disabilities benefit from this financial resource.
