

Limited Resources Will Test DOJ Preference For Merger Suits

Thursday, January 27, 2022

Jonathan Grossman was quoted in an article published by Law360, which discusses reactions to Jonathan Kanter, the U.S. Department of Justice's Antitrust Division chief, stating that merger settlements should be "the exception, not the rule." Jonathan explained the DOJ might be "playing a long game," working to either change court precedent or force congressional intervention in the face of a loss. "Congress is considering some changes that would make a difference in both merger and non-merger enforcement," he said.

To read the full article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Antitrust & Competition