

Election-Reform Debate Poses Risks for Companies that Weigh in on Legislation

Thursday, April 15, 2021

Howard Schweitzer was quoted in an article by Investment News arguing that one of the biggest challenges facing big businesses today is determining whether they should speak out on election reform laws that are proliferating across the country. “Corporate America can’t hide,” said Howard. “Stakeholders expect corporations to look out for the greater good, and if they don’t, they pay a literal and figurative price.”

To read more, click here. (registration required)